REPORT OF THE
COMMISSION ON THE
FUTURE OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

The Commission on the Future of the University of Chicago was organized in 1947 to study the problems of the University and to make recommendations for its future development. The Commission has held numerous public hearings and has received many suggestions from faculty, students, and the public. The following are the main findings and recommendations of the Commission:

1. The University of Chicago should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the natural sciences, particularly in the fields of physics, chemistry, and biology.

2. The University should also continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the social sciences, particularly in the fields of economics, political science, and sociology.

3. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the humanities, particularly in the fields of history, literature, and philosophy.

4. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the arts, particularly in the fields of music, drama, and visual arts.

5. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the field of public service, particularly in the fields of law, medicine, and education.

6. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the field of international relations, particularly in the fields of diplomacy, foreign policy, and international law.

7. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the field of environmental studies, particularly in the fields of ecology, environmental policy, and environmental law.

8. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the field of space exploration, particularly in the fields of astronomy, astrophysics, and planetary science.

9. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the field of nuclear energy, particularly in the fields of nuclear physics, nuclear engineering, and nuclear policy.

10. The University should continue to be a center of research and scholarship in the field of artificial intelligence, particularly in the fields of computer science, cognitive science, and robotics.
